

I remember meeting everyone for the first time at Anish's house on May 23rd. Not knowing anyone beforehand and a bit nervous with what I was about to do suddenly setting in.

Fast forward 72 days, 4,000+ miles and here we are today about to complete this amazing journey.

From Cornell Hospital in Manhattan to Mission Bay Beach in San Diego we have come a long way, escaping Monroeville and many headwinds, while exploring some of the country's most magnificent places. We have met hundreds if not thousands of amazing and generous people and made a difference in the lives of many.

Along the way mistakes have been made, lessons have been learned and life has gone on. We've laughed, we've yelled, we've cried and yet we stand here today as a team.

You will always be my I4K family - don't ever forget how amazing you really are!

"Make sure you are doing what you love and want to do. You are here to make yourself happy first. Life is too short to be doing something mediocre. Live out of a bag, experience every culture and give Aloha! We are only here once. Make a mark!" - Jon Steele
